that showcases a lot of my favorite dishes with incredible views of Waikiki Beach,” Morimoto said. “Momosan is more casual and focuses on several types of Ramen and Yakitori, which are grilled dishes, plus a wide selection of sake and beer including several of my Morimoto signature selections.”

Popular menu items at Morimoto Asia include the tuna pizza, beef carpaccio, roasted duck caesar salad and grilled kalbi.

In addition to ramen and an extensive sake menu, Momosan will serve small plates such as pork gyoza, yakitori and classic izakaya style rice dishes.

About 80 employees have been hired for the two restaurants, which are led by General Manager Chase Heu.

The two eateries are iterations of concepts that Morimoto previously opened on the Mainland. Morimoto Asia first debuted at Disney Springs in Orlando in 2015, while Momosan opened in New York City the next year.

“They provide two very different types of restaurants for resort guests to experience during their stay at Alohilani and also for the local diners who are interested in trying different styles of my cooking,” Morimoto said.

Rockwell Group was tapped for the design of the eateries, which include open floor plans and glass walls that separate diners from the kitchen but offer views of the food preparation.
